LONDON LIBERAL SYNAGOGUE

The corner stone for a new Liberal Synagogue in London, which will be the largest in Great Britain, was laid last week by Claude G. Montefiore, the leader of Liberal Judaism in England, and one of the truly great lay Jewish scholars in the world. It is expected that the Synagogue will be completed next September.

We over here hail the news with much satisfaction and we extend to Lily Montague, Dr. Montefiore, Rabbi Mattuck and the other leaders of the Liberal Synagogue in London our heartfelt congratulations that they have been privileged to witness the day for which they have long hoped and struggled.

The Liberal Jewish Synagogue in London and its branches is the only Reform Synagogue, in our American sense of the term, in Great Britain. There are only four in the whole British Empire; the other three are in Canada. There is another congregation in London calling itself Reform, whose pulpit was formerly occupied by the Rev. Morris Joseph, but the reforms consist of a few minor ritual changes in the services. We, on this side of the ocean, would consider it strictly Orthodox.

The Liberal Synagogue in London has, since its inception twenty-two years ago, had a very rough line to hoe. It has had to contend with the vigorous opposition of Orthodox Judaism, which in England has become a sort of Jewish state religion, taking its tone and status from the Anglican State Church. For that reason liberal Judaism is deserving of especial glory for the splendid progress it has made in England.

I read the Monthly Bulletin of the Liberal Synagogue which comes to my desk, and find it thought-provoking and religiously stimulating. The new edition of the High Holiday Prayer Book, compiled and edited by Rabbi Mattuck, is a decided improvement on the American Union Prayer Book, all of whose good features it embodies but whose faults it avoids, adding in their place prayers of true poetic beauty and piety. The Liberal Synagogue has to its credit the calling together of the recent fellowship conference of representatives of all the Christian religious denominations in London with a view of working out an expression on social righteousness which all religions, Jewish and Christian, have in common. I regret that the Orthodox branch of Jewry saw fit to absent itself from this conference and even threw cold water on it.

Judaism in England is in form less radical than American Reform Judaism, but in theory it outradicals even our radicals. This is due primarily to the extreme views of Mr. Claude G. Montefiore and Lily Montague, who are the founders and factitive leaders of the movement.

The leaders of the Liberal Synagogue in England with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Perlzweig, the associate Minister, who is a Zionist, are stubborn opponents of Jewish nationalism and Palestine in any form, even the religious. In this respect they differ from American Reform Jewish leaders, many of whom, though not endorsing political Zionism, are nevertheless willing to support the economic upbuilding of Palestine. There are many Reform rabbis in America holding important, if not the leading, pulpits who are pronounced Zionists. To mention but a few: S. S. Wise, of New York; Max Heller, of New Orleans; James G. Heller, his son, of Cincinnati, who now occupies Isaac M. Weiss' pulpit; A. H. Silver, of Cleveland; and Louis I. Newman, of San Francisco. The Central Conference of Rabbis has also placed itself on record as favouring the economic upbuilding of Palestine.

The anti-nationalistic attitude of the Liberal Synagogue in England must be a decided drawback in attracting to its ranks larger numbers of the Jewish cultured youth in England who favour a philosophy of Judaism that is a synthesis of a moderately liberal outlook on religion and Jewish nationalism. Claude G. Montefiore and Lily Montague have further estranged a certain class of Jewish sentiment from their cause by the enthusiastic fervour with which they embrace the New Testament and Jesus. This is positively shocking to the respectable, staid, I was almost going to say stagnant Orthodoxy of English Jewry. The emphasis in English Liberal Judaism has been on the adjectives and not on the noun, instead of vice versa. The same may be said of American Reform Judaism. Liberalism and Reform have been stressed far too much, ofttimes to the hurt and neglect of Judaism and Jewishness.

Yet with it all we know of no men in Jewish life who are more sincere, scholarly and persistent seekers after the higher truths in Judaism than are these leaders of English Liberal Judaism. Though my interpretation and emphasis of Liberal Judaism differs in some respects from theirs, I nevertheless welcome, as do all Reform Jews of America, the deserved progress which they have made in behalf of a cause which we hold so dear.

May their dreams of erecting a Synagogue worthy of their achievements and their possibilities be with God's help speedily realized, and may those who have laid the corner stone not only dedicate the structure but live long to preach and to teach Judaism as they understand it. I am certain that it will prove a citadel of strength to Judaism.

RETURN OF THE MARRANOS

The following letter to the editor of the Jewish Guardian, an Anglo-Jewish weekly of London, England, reveals the remarkable tenacity of the Jewish people for survival. I shall let it tell its own story:

Sir,—I am addressing myself to you on behalf of the Committee of the Lisbon Jewish Community, whose Honorary Secretary I am, on a subject we have much at heart, in the hope that it may equally appeal to you and your readers, that therefore you may be willing to help us in carrying out a scheme to solve a problem concerning the subject.

I am alluding to the Portuguese Crypto-Jews, or Marranos, as they are commonly known. They have shown signs lately of wishing admittance anew into the old Jewish fold of their forefathers. This very curious phenomenon of a people resisting during three whole centuries to persecutions, hatred, ill-will and prejudice from their environment is a wonderful example of the perseverance of our race in our own faith, and I think deserving attention and interest from all Jewry. I must not intrude on your goodness by expanding on details, but suffice it to say that these people live out in the country in two main groups—one about the centre of Portugal, and the other up in the north, entirely among themselves; not intermarrying with their Christian neighbours, partly through their own will, and partly because their Christian neighbours will not marry them, so hateful are they considered by the latter. They are not among them any very wealthy people; they are, as a rule, small landowners, agriculturists, small tradesmen, etc., though some have attained high situations, both in the time of the Monarchy and after. Of course, when they attain such high situations as Ministers of State, as some did under the Monarchy, they become more "Crypto" than ever; it is said that the great national Portuguese poet, Guerra Yunqueiro, who died last year, came from their stock, though he died a staunch Catholic. Now these people wish to be real Jews again, and this Committee is very desirous of doing their utmost to help them, but, unfortunately, the Committee is not able to do all. We require help. We have many charitable institutions which we hardly can keep on through the hard times through which we are running; we have pondered carefully on the subject, and have come to the only conclusion that seems practical. They want their children circumcised, and that we could easily do, sending out our Mohel when required, or having their children born in our Convalescent Home for Jews in this place; but this is not enough to make a Jew.

The child must be educated in a Jewish way later on, and we require for that a Jewish School, with board and lodging, and this we have not, and neither have we the means of doing it. If the subject should rouse interest, I think it should rouse all through Jewry, and not simply among us from Lisbon. I therefore beg of you to use the influence of the publicity of your paper in order to attract Jewish attention on the subject and so procure us the means of building a Jewish School where young Marranos and real young Jews might be educated together. I thank you in anticipation for whatever you decide, and beg to be excused of a broken English.

Yours very faithfully,
DR. ADOLFO BENARUS.

There is one sentence in the letter which for me is profoundly significant. It is the sentence that tells why these Marranos, whose forefathers, converted to Christianity in the sixteenth century, are now reverting to Judaism. They have not intermarried, but maintained their identity for two reasons, "their own will" and "the intense hatred of their neighbours."

The survival of the Jewish people for the

MARRIAGES

Tomarkin-Wener

The marriage of Ethel Wener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wener, to Saul Tomarkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Tomarkin, was solemnized at the New Adath Jeshurun, on February 8, at 6 o'clock, Rabbi Berger officiating. The bride, who wore a French gown of ivory beaded satin, was given away by her father. Her tulle veil had a double wreath of orange blossoms, which were caught at the sides. She carried a bridal bouquet of ophelia roses with shower of lilies-of-the-valley and babies' breath. The maid of honour, Miss Ethel Tomarkin, wore a peach beaded gown. The bridesmaids were Misses Edith Freedland, in mauve georgette; Rose Sandys, pale pink georgette; Sara Herscovitch, white georgette beaded in rhinestones, and Dora Venner, silver cloth. All carried bouquets of bridal roses. The best man was Lou Slatkoff. The groomsmen were Sam Lazarus, Billy Schwartz, Joe Tomarkin and Barney Sandys. Alec Povoll, the page boy, wore black satin, and the train-bearer, Esther Silverman, wore an old fashioned frock of blue taffeta. Mrs. Wener, the mother of the bride, and Mrs. Tomarkin, the mother of the groom, wore black beaded gowns. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Wener, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. W. Stein, of Patterson, N.J.; Ethel Wener, of Ottawa; M. Wener, of Vermillion, Alta.; Carl Charles, of Schenectady, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Fine, of Burlington, Vt.; Dora Venner, of Portland, Me. Dinner was served to 400 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Saul Tomarkin left on their honeymoon to New York and Atlantic City, and on their return will live in Montreal.

Every friday

Leave off the Shabbas preparations, stop your bustling over fish and soup, over candles and table linen, over sweets and polished silver; or forget that you are going home soon to a place of warmth and comfort, family joy, music, talk about a new car or a piece of jewelry. Forget that the evening takes you to prayer or cards or theatre. Go instead to the Federation. Push open the doors. Let the long line of the waiting see who it is that keeps them from bread and milk. Watch the people, worn, eager, desperate, putting pride aside, reaching out their hands for bread. Sorrow is in their eyes, in their gait, in their shoulders slumping under burdens of despair. Do they look as though they thought of trifles such as cars, jewelry, music, sweets? With them it is rent, shoes, bread for starving children. Yes, starving, literally, right under your eyes. They are out of work, or ill or unfortunate, and they wait in line for the Federation to turn them away because there is no help. For the Federation waits on you. Where are you with your payments? Until you make them there is no money—you know that! And until there is money there can be no bread or milk or anything. You should know that, too. Where are you while these people starve?

On December 7, American Jews were called on in a speech by Justice John Ford of the New York State Supreme Court, before the Hebrew Educational Society, to help various Christian bodies wipe out indecency in books through a revision of the laws as outlined by what is now the Clean Books League. Since then the National Council for the Protection of Literature and the Arts has been formed "to oppose any restrictive legislation tending toward political control of those influences that establish public opinion."

Justice Ford told the Hebrew Educational Society the sad story of how his daughter had been contaminated by a book from the public library and how from the moment he discovered the book he had determined to wage a campaign by meetings, writings and the formation of the Clean Books League to keep such literature away from the young. The speaker said that the doom of America was being sounded by growing sexual laxity and licentiousness traceable in part to "the deluge of obscenity engulfing the land."

Commenting on Justice Ford's speech to the Hebrew Educational Society, the Catholic Register of Toronto speaks of the extreme gravity of a situation which finds the innocent young a prey to immoral literature, to degeneracy and pollution through bad books. It goes on to ask:

"Will the Jews help? They have been charged with responsibility for much of the vileness in American literature, drama and moving pictures. Certainly they wield an influence in the dramatic and film fields out of all proportion to their numbers and have been taxed with a gradual lowering of moral and esthetic standards in those fields. Smut is a paying proposition to-day, and its purveyors justify themselves with the plea that demand creates supply and the public must be pleased. A most reprehensible excuse!"

Will the Jews help? It is to be hoped that they won't help in any such plan as Justice Ford proposes. They have no corner on either the smutty or the artistic but they are the last people to establish such a censorship as is suggested by the Clean Books bill. This bill, if passed, would permit the suppression of any entire book, regardless of its character, if it contained matter that seemed objectionable to any local jury. Literary critics and authorities on books would be disqualified specifically and the jury to decide would be made up of such dumbbells as constitute the ordinary jury. A conviction would mean jail for the publisher or the author if he was within state jurisdiction.

In opposition to this reactionary measure the Council represents American authors, books, newspapers and periodical publishers; and artists', screen writers' and motion picture producers' organizations tired of the activities of professional reformers at meetings of legislative bodies. The Council claims that a vote of the people at large would defeat the enactment of restrictive legislation and that existing laws are sufficient. With regard to these same laws, Justice Ford in his speech said that the suppression of "printed obscenity" had been for fifty-six years the public policy of New York State and that these laws, passed by successive legislatures, represented the dominant moral sentiment. He also said that a like preponderance of moral sentiment now favours cleansing our literature of its filth and depravity.

What do these harsh words mean? That people are more fastidious to-day than they have been for fifty-six years past or that our literature is heavier with filth and depravity? It probably means nothing more than that one more American wants to make just one more law. One more American, this time a reformer who must limit the freedom of writers, can gather enough people about him to form an organization of meddlers.

These reformers, carping, narrow-minded and puritanical, want to control the conduct of their fellows and lift them up by superior judgment and knowledge. The trouble with the Clean Books League is its assumption that it can thus save humanity by a newer statute and promote general intellectual welfare by regulation and governmental authority.

The existing law in New York State, the literary centre of America, provides for the weighing of an entire book and condemns only writing that obviously panders to immorality. The Council wants this law to stand as enough protection for the public. Will the Jews help?

At a meeting of the Amicitia Club at 10 Stanley Street, Jack Bogant spoke on "Law and Labour." He said that it would be detrimental to the interests of both employer and employee if the government enforced compulsory arbitration. H. Workman moved a vote of thanks, seconded by Arthur Rosenberg.

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND IN CANADA

According to a statement issued by the headquarters in Montreal, the Jewish National Fund income during January 1925, is more than twice the income during the same month of the previous year, being $1,746.21 this year, and $823.86 last year. People often take out insurance policies with beneficiary the Jewish National Fund. The Bnai Zion Association in Toronto, headed by Dr. J. Shayne, will run a masquerade ball during Purim, the income to go to the Jewish National Fund. A resolution was adopted at the last meeting of the Supreme Council of the Order Habonim, that each chapter of the Order shall appoint a special committee to further the work of the Jewish National Fund. The headquarters of the Jewish National Fund in Canada are appealing now to the various Zionist societies. Hadassah chapters, Young Judaea groups, etc., to organize annual affairs on behalf of the Jewish National Fund during the Purim week. In connection with an appeal issued at the conference of the Jewish authors of Palestine, about dedicating the coming Chol Hamoed days of Passover to concentrated efforts on behalf of the Jewish National Fund, the head office is now preparing plans for a Land Fund campaign, for the object of redeeming 1,000 dunam ($20 a dunam) of land in Palestine. Each donor of half a dunam ($10) and over will receive an engraved certificate with inscription from headquarters. Jewish schools will organize collections and the slogan will be "Shlach-Monos for the Jewish People."

ANNA FITZIU AT HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE

Blessed with all the qualities that enter into the making of a great singer, and amazing vocal equipment and overwhelming personal appeal, in which an ideal beauty of face and figure is combined with remarkable intelligence and vivacity, all resting upon a solid foundation of sincerity, spontaneity and modesty, typical of the best in the American character, Anna Fitziu may easily rank as the most significant native artist now to be heard in the United States.

Anna Fitziu had already won a tremendous reputation abroad when the war broke out and compelled her to return to America. But instead of handicapping her, this apparent misfortune only added impetus to her rapidly growing success. For in her native land Miss Fitziu immediately won an unprecedented popularity and within a few months had become a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, later appearing also with the Chicago, Bracale and Sigaldi companies, and touring all over North and South America.

VANCOUVER

At the last meeting of the Vancouver Chapter of Hadassah the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Parker; vice-president, Mrs. H. Brown; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Bloom; financial-secretary, Mrs. A. Rothstein; recording-secretary, Mrs. M. Shore; treasurer, Mrs. E. Gold; honorary vice-president, Mrs. B. Shore. A sewing was held at the home of Mrs. H. Bloom, and it was decided to hold a bridge and whist, February 4, the proceeds to go towards founding a tuberculosis institution in Palestine.

"Who Cares?" a one act symbolic health fantasy by Dr. Luba Robin Goldsmith, of Pittsburgh, has just been published, after innumerable requests for the same. Though symbolic in character, expressing high ideals, the play is close enough to everyday life to arouse vital interest in community matters.

What is believed to be unique in America is a Hebrew letter sorority just organized at Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio. It is called Beth Avin. Elinor Kelly of Zanesville, is president. Other officers are: Florence Dutton, Springfield; Ruth Faller, Findlay; Harriet Bowe, Chagrin Falls; and Elda Piero, Canton.

Louis Bouwmeester, said to be the oldest living Dutch actor (he is eighty-three), has just been awarded an annual municipal pension of 4,000 guilders, the equivalent of $1,700.

RABBI SCHMELLNER ARRIVES WITH PEACE PLAN

Rabbi Zeide M. Schmellner of Roumania arrived in New York with a peace plan, which he said followed closely the ideals of Woodrow Wilson. He was given the freedom of the city by Acting Mayor Collins who greeted him at City Hall.

Rabbi Schmellner, who came on the Berengaria, was met down the bay by the municipal tug Macon, which had on board representatives of various Jewish organizations of the city.

After being formally received by the Acting Mayor, Rabbi Schmellner responded in Hebrew and told those assembled in front of City Hall he did not favour the League of Nations for the settlement of the peace of the world, but believed the International Court of Justice advocated by President Warren G. Harding would serve the purpose. His remarks were interpreted by Municipal Court Justice Strahl.

Then and Now

This One Remembers

The late Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Lewis were old residents of Montreal, parents of Mrs. J. A. Jacobs and Mrs. William Levy. The late E. Youngheart was a cigar manufacturer in Montreal. Mrs. Youngheart is sister-in-law of Edmund Scheuer and was the soloist of the Bond Street Synagogue choir, and her beautiful voice is a pleasant memory. She is now Mrs. Hirschberg and lives in Berlin, Germany. The Wertheims are now only a memory. The late Mrs. A. Miller was the wife of Alexander, one of the pioneers of Jewry in Toronto, an early and staunch member of the Bond Street Synagogue. Of the three sons, Laurie only is alive, now a resident of New York. The late Sol Vineberg, of Montreal, was married to one of the Singer girls of our city. He met an untimely death as the result of an automobile accident. Mrs. A. Cohen, mother of Mrs. Max Goldstein, of Winnipeg, has long been gathered to her fathers. Lieutenant Frank D. Benjamin became Captain Benjamin of the Queen's Own Rifles. The late Olga Strauss died about four years ago. She was a niece of Edmund Scheuer. The late Mrs. William Levy was likewise his sister, one of the pioneers of Jewry in Hamilton. Camelia Birkenthal, a daughter of the late Rabbi Birkenthal, the first theological graduate rabbi in Hamilton, and a sister of Mrs. H. G. Levetus of this city and of Miss Etta Birkenthal, who was the first Jewish school teacher in Ontario. Well do I remember, shortly after the death of her revered father, she came to Toronto and sought the friend of her family, Edmund Scheuer (who, as president of the shul in Hamilton, was instrumental in bringing the rabbi, her father, to Hamilton), to help her obtain a position as teacher in Toronto. The late C. A. B. Brown, who was school trustee for the ward in which almost the whole of Toronto Jewry resided, was appealed to. He at once promised his support and quicker than you can say it, Miss Birkenthal obtained the position, which she is filling at this day. J. Michaels was one of the pioneers of the Canadian cigar trade and was known as "Stonewall Jackson." The late Rabbi De Sola was rabbi of the McGill College Synagogue, of Montreal, until his death a few years ago. A son, Abraham Charles, is practicing law with Peter Berkovitch, M.P.P. The late D. A. Ansell, Counsel General of Mexico, was the grand old man of Montreal Jewry, and passed away at the age of ninety-four years. Israel Rubenstein is the senior member of Rubenstein Bros., the brass founders, a brother of Alderman Louis. Mr. Rubenstein at the present moment is a very sick man. Lyon Cohen is the son of the late Lazarus Cohen, who was a brother of Rabbi Hirsch Cohen. Mr. Holstein is Louis Holstein. Ship (father of Doctor Ship), Sessenwein and Finberg have passed away. The late Mr. Finberg was the founder of the Hebrew Free Loan of Montreal, and left a son who is occupying the chief executive position of that society. Dr. D. A. Hart is the oldest living representative of the family who are the earliest Jewish residents of Montreal. He has reached the age of eighty-one. Harris Weinberg is the oldest clothing manufacturer in Montreal and is to-day in active service. Moses Vineberg, who was one of the best known manufacturing furriers in Canada, died a year ago. A. M. Vineberg, a son, also died. L. Aronson and H. Rutenberg, were business partners. A. Goldstein was father of Jacob Goldstein and William Goldstein of our city. Jacob Goldstein lives in Westmount. His only son, Edgar, went to the front in the late war and never returned. The late J. L. Samuels was for fifty years choir leader of the Sheret Israel Synagogue. The late J. Sherman was for many years collector for the Baron De Hirsch Institute. Louis Caplan and A. Brill, who were with the H. Wineberg Company, were the platoon commanders of the Hirsch Cadets. Miss Rose Auerbach is a sister-in-law to Mrs. Teresa Simonsky Englander, of this city. Of all mentioned only two are active in the political arena, one in the Liberal and the other in the Conservative. S. W. Jacobs has for many years represented a Montreal constituency as a Liberal member of the Dominion Parliament.

LOUIS GUROFSKY.

Social Life about 25 Years Ago— Do You Remember?—

Prizes for the Sabbath school and sewing school in connection with the Council of Jewish Women were distributed at Holy Blossom Synagogue. After "Adonoi Jechorami" by Rev. Solomon and the choir, the children sang "We Meet Again in Gladness," and Miss Bertha Cohn led the school prayer. Mrs. Youngheart sang "O God Divine," and Rabbi Wittenburg complimented Edmund Scheuer on the progress of the children. Two medals presented by A. Myers for highest marks in general proficiency were won by Bernard Fogler and Annie Goldstein. Prize-winners were Joseph Lewis, Abe Cohen, Sam Wineberg, Isidore Finberg, Philip Brown, Nellie Friedman, Bertha Cohen, Betty Winestein, Nellie Brody, Sarah Houser, Bennie Geldzache, Hyman Yaffe, Fred Singer, Nellie Baskin, Martha Davis, Rosie Kadisky, Sarah Krugel, Pearl Greisman, Mildred Cohen, Moses Greisman, Moses Woods, Isaac Cohen, Isidore Singer, Abe Singer, Bessie Pullan, Annie Korn, Schalkoff, Rachel Black, Martha Hellman, Sarah Clayman, Sadie Wolf, Jennie Draiman, William Lapatnikoff, Arthur Davis, Leah Wilkes, Alex Singer, Betty Strauss, Rachel Torgenhaft, Katie Black, Lena Levinsky, Susie Halpert, Rosie Geldzache, Jennie Landsberg, Sarah Rosen, Mary Solomon, Sarah Faeder, Ida Rosen, Jennie Birkowitz, Maudie Freedman, Etta Prayer. A. D. Benjamin thanked Rev. M. Samuel for assisting in the distribution and announced that Mr. Singer had promised a silk tallis to the winner of the boys' medal and another gift to the winner of the girls' medal.

At the annual closing of the Shaar Hashomayim school, synagogue recitations in Hebrew and English were given by J. Saxe, A. Morris, Harry Jacobs, Bernard Gordon, Barney Jacobs, Moses Gordon, and Misses B. Albert, E. Wener and M. Bernstein. Piano and vocal solos were given by Misses B. Morris and R. Tanenbaum, and E. Silverstone. Rev. Kleinfield played several of his own compositions. E. Gordon was praised for his interest in the children.

Silhouettes Exhibited at Hart House

For the last two weeks there has been on exhibition in Hart House a collection of silhouettes by Miss Lise Hummell, of Vienna, sister of Mrs. L. Simon, 20 South Drive. Six representative pieces of her work are at present also in the Graphic Arts exhibit at the Grange. Previous to these local exhibitions a few specimens had been reproduced in European, American and Canadian publications, and had been viewed in private in Toronto, and to a lesser extent in New York. In Hart House, for the first time, the bulk of Miss Hummell's work appeared before the public.

The venturesome experiment of a complete exhibit, solely of silhouettes, has been a remarkable success. They have been received with an immediate warm affection, a tribute of sheer joy to their unexpected perfection. Whoever has seen them has smiled, and laughed. They proceed so directly to the heart. A local artist has said of them that they are of Greece, of Phidias and Praxiteles.

They borrow from nowhere. They are of themselves. From outlines, it seems of black paper, is brought out the very texture of the round, chubby, soft limbs of the shepherd boys and children. They laugh and sing, they are petulant or tremendously in earnest. They are absorbed within themselves, as only playing children can be. We feel that before these pictures no one has ever caught the changing moods of children as surely as Miss Hummell has. All reservations regarding the narrowness of the medium disappear. In her hands the scissor-cut penetrates with a marvellous directness and felicity to the delicate poetry of cumulous summer clouds of wind in trees, of ballet dancers, of even blades of grass with personality. The emphasis never strays, overrides or falls short. In this inevitability lies the enduring quality of these silhouettes. They have that "rightness" which Gilbert Murray has named the great virtue of Greek art. They are perfect. We can imagine not one turn of leaf changed, not one degree of gesture, more or less.

These pictures measure, most of them, inches in size, yet they possess the content of the full, large canvas of heroic sculture. They reveal new perfections, visit after visit. In Hart House are over eighty pictures, without once the feeling of repetition. We have been privileged to see the work of an artist of great talent and of the highest distinction.

At the Right

Miss Lise Hummel, young Viennese artist in the silhouette, whose work has been praised by the artists of Europe and this continent. Miss Hummel is now in Switzerland, but a wide collection of her work has been loaned to the Hart House Sketch Club by her sister, Mrs. L. Simon. Above are four silhouettes showing the delicate poetic quality which characterizes this young artist's compositions. From left to right: "The Painter," an illustration of one of Hans Andersen's moon stories, showing some of Miss Hummel's children; "Little Bo-Peep," some of her shepherds and shepherdesses; and "Incantation," illustrating what imaginate work may be done in black paper.

DR. SELIAN NEUHOF, CARDIOLOGIST, DIES

Dr. Selian Neuhof, one of the leading cardiologists in the United States a former professor at the Fordham University Medical School, and a member of several hospital staffs in the city, died Monday of last week, at his home, 144 East Eighty-fourth Street.

The physician, who graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1893, was 63 years old. The greater part of his professional life was devoted to the study of cardiac diseases and two treatises on this subject, "The Heart" and "Clinical Cardiology," have been standard texts in the American medical schools for several years.

Dr. Neuhof was a visiting physician at the Central and Neurological Hospital, a consulting physician in cardiology at the Broad Street Hospital, and for many years associate attending physician and chief of the Cardiac Clinic at Lebanon Hospital. His brother, Dr. Harold Neuhof, also a prominent physician and surgeon in New York, only last year performed a spectacular operation at Bellevue Hospital by transplanting a sheep's kidney in the thigh of a bichloride of mercury victim. This measure was taken to restore artificial renal function, but was unsuccessful.

In addition to his brother, Dr. Neuhof is survived by his widow and two daughters.

MEMORIAL NEIGHBOURHOOD HOUSE NEEDS FUNDS

An appeal was issued last week by the Board of Directors of the Henry Meinhard Memorial Neighbourhood House, 130 East 101st Street, for funds to continue its activities among sick children and to meet the increasing needs of the district. The appeal says:

"Each year hundreds of children are examined by a staff of capable physicians; the findings are reported to the parents, and whenever the parents are unable to provide adequate medical attention our staff of workers arranges for such proper treatment. Many children are now returning to school in better health because of our aid. Several hundred children have been sent away for country vacations, and still other hundreds were treated to day outings in outlying parks. Every penny contributed goes directly for the benefit of these children. All the overhead and maintenance expenses are paid by a friend. It is believed that this is unique among philanthropic institutions."

Morton H. Meinhard is president of the organization. Clara Byrnes and Benjamin J. Buttenweiser, vice-presidents, and George L. Cohen, 2 Rector Street, treasurer.

Secret indictments against 104 persons, alleged to have participated or been responsible for the Ku Klux disorders which occurred in Niles, Ohio, November 1, and various recommendations, including the removal from office of Mayor Harvey C. Kisstler and Police Chief L. J. Rounds of Niles are contained in the report of a special Trumbull County Grand Jury which investigated the clashes between Ku-Klux Klansmen and anti-Klansmen. The report submitted to Common Pleas Judge Charles M. Wilkins after the jury had been in session with few recesses for ten days and during which it examined 257 witnesses, commended Governor A. V. Donahey "for the prompt and thorough manner in which he restored order."

The dedication of the new Temple Center of Temple Beth Emeth, Wilmington, Delaware, took place Sunday, December 14. Rabbi Wm. H. Fineshriber, rabbi of Temple Keneseth Israel of Philadelphia, delivered the dedication address. Rabbi Lee J. Levinger, rabbi of the Temple, and the president of the Temple, James Ginns, spoke.

DEATH OF DR. LUDWIG HARTMANN

The famous historian, Dr. Ludwig Moritz Hartmann, passed away in Vienna at the age of sixty. The deceased was a pupil of Momsen, and like his master, devoted himself exclusively to the history of Rome, having written several volumes on that subject. Because of his Jewish descent, he was unable to obtain a professorship in Austria, but in 1918, when Austria became a republic, Dr. Hartmann devoted himself to politics. He was later appointed Austrian Ambassador to Berlin. He formally left the Jewish community several years ago, but did not join any other denomination.

It is expected that Dr. J. H. Hertz, Chief Rabbi of the British Empire, Dr. Israel Levi, Chief Rabbi of France, and Dr. Chajes, Chief Rabbi of Vienna, will arrive in Palestine next spring to be present at the opening ceremony of the Institute of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem.

COMMERCE REALTY AND FINANCE

"WE HAVE THE FACTS"

If you were walking in downtown To-ronto or having lunch with me at any exclusive Hotel or Club to-day, I could point out numerous successful men, who when called by name you would think rich—made their money in real estate. You'd be right, too. Then you'd wonder how they did it. I know how. They had their eyes open all the time for the main chance, and when they saw one they grabbed it. "All right," you say, "but they were on the inside. They knew beforehand what was going to happen in certain locations."

Yep, that's true. It's so blamed obvious sometimes. First of all, you should own the house you live in. I know right now where you can step in and grab a chance yourself, and it's so plain that I won't need to do more then show you the pro-perty and give you some facts. Now then, if you have any money to invest, this is the time to do it.

Don't wait till the next time. Give me a ring, Main 2426. A thirty-minute talk with me may prove interesting and may also be very profitable to you.

JEWISH CHILDREN'S HOME

The regular executive meeting of the Jewish Children's Home will be held at the home of Mrs. M. L. Willinsky, 115 Bernard Avenue, Tuesday, February 17, at 7.30 p.m.

STANDARD THEATRE

Judging by the hearty laughter that resounded at all performances of Bessie Thomashefsky at the Standard Theatre last week, the audiences surely derived full measure of enjoyment from the artiste's performance.

The commedienne will produce a new comedy, called "The Imported Wife," for February 13-14, which will be her farewell performances and the management hopes the response will be even larger than the first week.

EMPIRE

Joe Hurtig's "Nifties of 1925," all new from the "Nifties" of last season, when the show made such a fine reputation, will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre week of February 16, featuring Danny Murphy, the Dutch dialectician. Danny Murphy and Joe Rose have prepared the book of the new entertainment; Jimmie Johnson wrote the music; Dan Dody staged the dances and Joe Hurtig personally staged the completed programme. With such a superior combination of writing and acting talent as "Nifties" afford, there is assurance of up-to date comedy, the lilt of pretty music and the assemblage of a host of dancing girls in alluring musical numbers. The feminine contingent is headed by Violet McKee, featured among the ladies as soubrette; Elsie Gregory, expert pianiste, from the English music halls, Mabel White, dainty dancer and comedienne, and Lillian Frier, a combination of soubrette and ingenue extraordinary. Honor and Smiles and Jack Coyle, leading man, will also contribute to the big show. Thursday night, chorus girls' revue.

SHEA'S

A vaudeville bill with headline honours shared by the Avon Comedy Four and Margaret Young will please Shea-goers this week. The Avon Comedy Four is the "big four" of quartettes. Joe Smith and Charles Dale were its originators and have been with it ever since its inception. Eddie Miller and Frank J. Corbett are the co-workers with Smith and Dale.

Margaret Young is good to look at and delightful to hear. She is a real vocal character artiste and her phonograph records are always in demand.

Al Herman is one of the few blackface comedians who has not been a minstrel.

Lew Castleton and Max Mack in songs and dances; the Lamys in a vaudeville surprise, and Margaret Stewart, presenting a posing act, complete the bill.

District Grand Lodge 3, Independent Order of Bnai Brith, which includes New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia, at its biennial convention in the Hotel Breakers, Atlantic City, N.J., on Tuesday, January 27, adopted a resolution calling upon members to help in the establishment of the Jewish national home.

All prominent Zionists and communal workers of Providence gathered at dinner on Sunday evening, February 1, at the Narragansett Hotel, to bid farewell to Mrs. Archibald Silverman, one of the most active Zionist and Keren Hayesod workers in New England, who is leaving for a visit to Palestine. Mr. Morris Rothenberg, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Keren Hayesod, was the principal speaker of the evening. Part of the evening was devoted to the interests of the Keren Hayesod.

The trial of Stanislaw Steiger, held under suspicion that he threw the gas bomb at the President of the Polish Republic, Wojciechowski, was again postponed. The case will be called in February. Steiger asked for release under bail until the trial, but this request was refused.

A short time ago mention was made in these columns of the suspension from the "Jolly Young Men's Club" at the home of the Daughters of David in New York of Henry Cohen, aged eighty years, because of his frivolity. He has now been reinstated. In petitioning for reinstatement he said: "I freely admit my fault, but I urge my youth as an extenuating circumstance and ask forgiveness." Yoachim Kurantmaa, 95 years old, the president; Abraham Posner, 92 years old, vice-president; Hyman Rothstein, 100, secretary; Horsch Cantor, 94, treasurer; Maidel Lerner, 98, sergeant at arms, and Chaim Ginsburg, 93, all voted to accept Henry's explanation and take him back, but Horowitz, who is 99 years old, held out stubbornly. "This talk about 'boys will be boys' don't get anywhere with me," he said. One of the inmates of the Home, Fanny Goldner, who was recently given a party in honour of her 103rd birthday, claims to be the oldest crossword puzzle enthusiast in the city of New York.

ANSHE SHOLOM

Services Friday night. Sermon by Rabbi Freund, "A Vital Judaism," a resumé of the St. Louis joint Convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods. Social hour and refreshments by the Deborah Society.

A newly trained choir of children from the Religious School for the first time assisted in the services Saturday morning.

The Ruth Girls, a junior club at Anshe Sholom, gave a Chamisho Osor party at the vestry rooms Saturday night. The Jolly Juniors—a similar boys' club—were the guests. Music, recitations, games, refreshments. Rabbi Freund was the honour guest.

At the assembly of the Religious School of Anshe Sholom Sunday morning, Chamisho Osor was observed with recitations, the purchase of a tree in the Herzl Forest in Palestine, and the demonstration by Rabbi Freund of various articles grown or made in Palestine, including some work of the Bezalel Art School at Jerusalem.

Sunday night the Anshe Sholom Men's Club, at its monthly dinner at the Royal Connaught, heard Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., on "A Jewish View of Jesus." Discussion. Vote of thanks to the speaker by Julius Kaplansky, seconded by M. Silverman. Rabbi Feinberg remained in the city for a day as the guest of Rabbi Freund.

last two thousand years in spite of not having a land of their own is unique in history. No other people has ever been able to accomplish the same thing. The reason is twofold and the same as that which has kept the Crypto-Jews of Portugal alive—the will from within and the opposition from without. These two forces have had a reciprocal effect, the one on the other. The outside opposition has steeled our wills, and our steeled wills have strengthened our power of opposition. Fighting for our very existence, we have found in our weakened frames hidden wells of life energy which we have, as the occasion arose, been able to tap and which made us stronger than we would have been and are when exterior opposition has been removed.

There is a profound lesson for Jews of to-day in the simple pathetic letter from the Marranos of Portugal addressed to the Jews of the world. Will the will to survive be as strong in the Jew when the opposition from without is gradually diminished? This is a question worth pondering over since it is the hope of all that racial and religious intolerance, hatred and suspicion will become weaker as education spreads its beneficent light in democratic countries. If the future may be judged from the past and the present, the outlook is not very hopeful. But yet history is always presenting the unlooked-for and the unexpected. So it has been in the past and so it may be in the future. In spite of every untoward condition, the Jews are more numerous and widespread to-day than ever before, and so it will possibly always be. Perhaps, after all is said and done, it is Providence that is responsible for Jewish survival.

The American Palestine Company, which has for its purpose the promotion of industry and commerce in Palestine, will merge with the Palestine Economic Corporation, of which Felix M. Warburg, Louis Marshall, Bernard Flexner and Herbert H. Lehman are the organizers, for the purpose of combining the economic activities of American Jewry in Palestine, according to a decision adopted at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Palestine Company.

WORLD NEWS

GOVERNOR SMITH LAUDS UNITY IN JEWISH CHARITY

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, told 500 Jews in Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and 43rd Street, that results obtained by the Federation for Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in uniting ninety-one charitable organizations had helped blaze the way for eventual consolidation of State charity departments, which the Governor advocates for efficiency.

"We now have nineteen different State agencies dealing with the question of human welfare," Governor Smith explained, "bringing about duplication of effort and wasteful expenditure. The State still is struggling with the problem you met so successfully eight years ago.

"The care of society's unfortunates would not be what it is except for private endeavour. Government, of necessity, is slow. Private endeavour can be speeded up and for that reason it is blazing the way for the State."

In his annual report Joseph L. Buttenwieser, president of the federation, revealed that $3,573,698.63 was spent for welfare work during 1924 by the ninety-one affiliated organizations, which include hospitals, orphan asylums, loan societies, schools and settlements and homes for the aged. He pointed out that Jews and Gentiles had joined to raise an additional $1,250,000 for extension of the federation's work this year.

Mr. Buttenwieser also announced appointment of a committee to "safeguard against unnecessary duplication of effort and prevent creation of new institutions in fields already fully covered."

One of the most recent of the federation's activities, he disclosed, is erection of a factory in which tubercular men and women may support themselves under conditions which tend to improve their condition.

David A. Anspacher was elected trustee at large and seven others, including Arthur Lehman, Walter E. Beer, Col. H. A. Guinzberg, Herman Lissner, Henry F. Samstag, Cyrus L. Sulzberger and Maurice Wertheim, were re-elected.

EUGENE MEYER, RETIRED BANKER, IS DEAD AT 82

Financier, Who Was California Pioneer, Succumbs at Home

Eugene Meyer, who died at his home 135 Central Park West, at the age of eighty-two, was looked upon as one of the most eminent Jews in America.

Born in Strasburg in 1843, he came to this country as a youth and at the age of seventeen migrated to Los Angeles. At that time the California city was but a frontier post of 3,000 inhabitants. Engaging in business there he took a prominent part in its upbuilding and was a member of the vigilance committee which converted the community to the cause of law and order.

In 1883, he moved to San Francisco, where he became the head of the London, Paris and American Bank, coming to New York ten years later as a partner of the firm of Lazard Freres. He retired from active business in 1901.

Mr. Meyer was an officer of the Legion of Honour and was actively identified throughout his life with activities for the welfare of natives of France and Alsace-Lorraine. During the war he served as president of the Franco-American Liberty Loan Association.

Mr. Meyer married, in 1867, Miss Harriet Newmark, of Los Angeles. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1917. His wife died in 1922. He is survived by Mrs. Sigmund Stern, of San Francisco; Mrs. Elsie Stern, Mrs. George Blumenthal, Mrs. Alfred A. Cook, Mrs. Charles Liebmann, daughters, and Walter E. Meyer and Eugene Meyer Jr., sons. A third son, Edgar, lost his life in the sinking of the Titanic.

$100,000 GIFT TO HELP NOURISH HEBREW WRITERS

An endowment fund of $100,000 for the relief of distressed Hebrew writers and for furthering a Hebrew language and literary renaissance in Palestine and Jewish settlements, has been established by Israel Metz, president of the Ex-Lax Manufacturing Company. The announcement of the fund was made through the Palestine Foundation Fund.

The fund will be known as the Israel Metz Foundation for Hebrew Literature and will be administered by the following board of trustees: Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, chairman; Dr. Joseph Krimsky, treasurer; Emanuel Neumann, secretary; Peter Wiernick, Rev. H. Masliansky, Rabbi Herbert I. Levinthal, Dr. Max Raisin, John L. Bernstein and Senior Abel. The income will be expended in America and abroad.

The gift is said to be the largest ever made exclusively in the interests of the Hebrew language and is a significant event in the present Jewish renaissance, which will reach its highest point in the opening of the Hebrew University on the Mount of Olives, near Jerusalem, on April 1, according to Dr. Kaplan.

Mr. Metz explained that he was inspired to establish the fund because of the acute sufferings of many famous Hebrew writers in Europe, who have been rendered destitute by the war, post-war upheavals and Soviet persecutions.

MRS. LERNER, WORN OUT BY TWO YEARS IN RUSSIA, FINALLY ALLOWED IN U. S.

Mrs. Anna Lerner, twenty-one, ill and worn out after two years in Soviet Russia, during which time she was barred from the United States by Secretary of State Hughes, because of her "dangerous opinions," is at the home of Jacob Mizen, in Baltimore, awaiting the return from California of her husband, a world war veteran, through whom she was finally admitted to this country.

Lerner has not seen his wife since her return to this country.

Meanwhile, the young woman, who was described by Senator La Follette during her attempts to gain entrance to the United States, as a "little wisp of a thing—the most inoffensive person imaginable," is trying to regain her strength before Lerner arrives from the West.

The woman's troubles date back to 1922, when she left Philadelphia to join the Kuzbas colony in Russia. She was of Russian birth and had heard a new order was being established at Kuzbas by Americans who believed in Soviet principles.

And Mrs. Lerner was to enter this new order as a "worker," having been trained as a stenographer. Shortly after her arrival in Russia she met Noah Lerner, an American veteran of the world war. They were married at Kuzbas.

Then Lerner returned to the United States. His wife expected to follow him, but technicalities blocked her way. Her father had died before he was naturalized. The United States called her a Russian.

When Lerner attempted to obtain a passport for his wife, he was informed by the State Department that she was an "undesirable alien." The Society of Friends and the Civil Liberties Union entered the struggle. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, offered his aid, and Senator La Follette also helped.

But the ruling of the State Department was upheld. Mrs. Lerner was "dangerous."

Written appeals from her, telling of her existence as a stenographer in Moscow, failed to change that ruling. She was herded with other unfortunates into what was known under the new order as a central immigration house.

Last spring the Immigration Act was amended and Mrs. Lerner was admitted as the wife of an American citizen.

MODEL SON DIES A SUICIDE AFTER LIFE OF SACRIFICE

David Attinson was the sort of son mothers dream their men-children will grow up to be. Now that he is dead by his own act at twenty-two, a crippled mother and a sickly sister will enshrine him in memory even as they all but idolized him in life.

The women found him dead in the bathroom of their tenement home at No. 31 First Street, New York, when the mother woke and smelt gas. Rose, the sister, smashed a glass panel to open the locked door, and dragged her brother's body into the living room. But the tube that ran from his mouth to a gas jet had done its work.

It was at first reported David had been despondent because he had not been appointed a teacher of history—his favourite subject—in the Textile High School, West 30th Street, but had been assigned to teach Latin. Investigation proved this theory groundless.

Close friends of the dead youth gave what they consider the real reason. Six years ago, they said, David courted a girl. He was so proud of his fiancee, he took his best friend to see her, the chum with whom he had gone through high school and the College of the City of New York. The girl fell in love with the other man.

David's trouble was that he had had no time for puppy love. When he was two, his father vanished, leaving his wife and their two children. Mrs. Attinson took in washing and went nights to scrub department store floors that Rose and David might eat and have an education. This accounts for the rheumatism now racking the mother's worn frame.

David caught his mother's spirit of sacrifice early and did all he could to see it was not in vain. He studied hard, scrubbed floors and washed dishes.

Fourteen years ago Mrs. Attinson was married to Meyer Boshes, now seventy and in a hospital, after being practically an invalid for years. Three years ago David was graduated from college and got a position as teacher in Junior High School No. 20. He taught Hebrew in a private school at night, tutored, and went to Columbia once a week on a scholarship he won in college.

At last money was coming in. Rose had a good job—$30 a week—and David was able to send his mother away last summer to springs that were supposed to cure her rheumatism—$2,000. Yet the mother was always saving a little "so David can marry when he's twenty-three."

David got the family breakfasts. He helped with dinner and frequently washed the dishes to save his mother and sister. He did this Wednesday night.

"An excellent teacher, liked by everybody," James J. O'Reagan, Principal of School No. 20, said. "We have no idea of why he did this unless the mental strain of carrying so much work proved too much and made him temporarily insane."

Are You Keeping Pace?

The march of events of world-wide Jewry pursues its course and the daily record of its progress, accomplishments, achievements, tribulations and victories present an epic story that taps every human emotion from sorrow to joy, from pity to exultation.

Have you ever had occasion before to contemplate the vast and colourful scene wherein some sixteen million Jews scattered to the far-flung corners of the earth are engaged in the business of living, or existing if you prefer, the particular manner in which they are accomplishing this end and the conditions under which it is attained?

News correspondents, who are in many instances natives of the land, trained in its customs and history, paint this picture for you, this human record so vitally relevant to the progress of the world. Sometimes they do it through the briefest of cable dispatches, sometimes a lengthy report, and then again it may be a news letter from Sao Paolo, or Mexico City, or Washington, or London. Whatever the pen picture, you may be sure of its absorbing interest, and equally as important, of its unquestionable authenticity.

It is for these reasons that all ranks of American Jewry have received with an inspiring enthusiasm the advent of the Jewish Daily Bulletin, the only English daily record of world-wide Jewish news. And this unique paper, as the "Christian Science Monitor" says, "is being published from a standpoint that reflects a changing attitude in the world . . . and is doing its share towards forwarding the welfare of the world."

The only way to keep apace of the news of the world-wide Jewry is to read the Jewish Daily Bulletin. Fifteen to twenty minutes a day is all that it will take of your time. And as the Jewish Daily Bulletin is not sold on newsstands you should subscribe now for a year at $10.00, six months at $6.00, one month at $1.00. Fill out now your
